The New Court of Appeals Law Goes Into THREE NAMES REPORTED AT THE CITY HALL AS HAVING BEEN SELECTED BY THE PRESIDENT - three TWO DISTRICT LAWYERS AMONG THEM-THE

POWERS OF THE NEW COURT AND THE STATUS Today, pursuant to the act of Congress approved February 9, 1893, the District Court of Appeals becomes a part of the judiciary system of the District, and the all-important question, not only in local legal circles, but, indeed, throughout the District, is, who will compose the court? A number of names have been mentioned as candidates for the places on the bench created by the new law. Today a report was circu-lated at the city hall and seemed to be gener-ally accepted as a fact that the President had determined to appoint Mr. Martin F. Mor-ris as chief justice of the Court of Appeals and ex-Representative Hemphill of South Carolina and Mr. J. J. Darlington as the associate instices of the court. On the assumption that this was true general gratification was expressed that Mr. Cleveland and respected the general desire here to have at least two members of the court appointed from the District bar. Other names that have been mentioned in connection with these places are those of Senstors Faulkner and Gray, Messrs, R. Ross Perry, Henry E. Davis, H. O. Claughton and J. G. Whatever may be the grounds for such a belief, it seems to be a very general one in local legal circles that Mr.

M. F. Morris will be the Chief Justice of the new court and that ex-Representative Hemphill will be one of the two associate justices of the court. By some the appointment of the judges is not expected before next week. While the republican members of the bar are not pressing the names of any candidates, some of them express the opinion that would be a proper and graceful act on the part of the President to appoint one republican to a seat on the bench of the court, and not a few seem to think that Mr. Cleveland will do it. APPEALS FROM THE POLICE COURT. Another important effect of the establish ment of the Court of Appeals is, it is claimed. that the right of an appeal from the judgments of the Police Court is abolished. Heretofore, judgments of the Police Court could be appealed from to the Court in General Term. But uuder the provisions of the Court of Appeals act such appellate jurisdiction is taken from the Court in General Term, and, either through oversight or design, is not delegated to the new court. The Police Court, so many lawyers hold, is thereby made a court of last resort in all cases coming before it. There are some members of the bar, however, who question the correctness of such an opinion, they being of the opinion that the right of appeal from the Police Court to the Criminal Court is revived, and from the latter such an appeal can be still further prosecuted to the Court of

It seems to be well settled, however, that no appeal in a criminal case can be taken from the ourt of Appeals to the United States Suprema tional question is involved. The right of an cace to the Circuit Court still remains, and it a generally believed that such an appeal may finally be heard and determined by the court of appeals through an appeal from the judg-ment of the Circuit Court.
